

Kalshi: What Parents Need to Know

Your child may come across prediction markets online, but that doesn't mean they're meant for kids.

Like the New York Stock Exchange, Kalshi is a financial exchange for users 18 and older. Minors are prohibited, and Kalshi uses age and identity verification and other safeguards to keep them off the platform.

FOR EVERY PARENT

Start the conversation

Simple questions to ask your child:

"Have you heard of Kalshi or prediction markets? What have you heard?"

"When does making a prediction become a financial decision?"

"Why do you think platforms like this have age requirements?"

"What would you do if someone sent you a link to join?"

IF YOU USE KALSHI

Keep your account yours

A parent's logged-in phone is one of the easiest ways in.

- 1 Protect your account
Use a strong password, two-step sign-in, and Face ID when available.
- 2 Check shared devices
Know which financial and trading apps your child can open.
- 3 Lock down access
Log out, and make sure your child can't use your account.

THE BOTTOM LINE

Kalshi is for users 18+. Not kids.

Ads, social posts, influencers, and sports talk can introduce kids to platforms they're not old enough to use. Talk about what they see and why age limits matter.

EXPLORE KALSHI'S RESOURCES

Trust & Safety for Families
Responsible Trading Tools
Stopping Insider Trading